Keynote Speaker Danny Beyer

We're all networking all the time. Those who seem to get more out of life have figured out how to put their network to work for them. This fun and interactive seminar will show how easy it is to network no matter how comfortable, or uncomfortable, you are with it. Learn how to get through boring small talk and build relationships that will result in both professional and personal success. Become conscious of the network you have and use simple strategies to get more from your connections immediately.
